George Moore:

George Moore and the Autogenous Self Elizabeth Grubgeld, 1994 In the midst of an explosion of interest in the field of autobiography there have developed critical languages and approaches that allow us to read both George Moore's fiction and his fictive autobiographies in new and exciting ways Elizabeth Grubgeld presents a fresh look at the diverse experiments in fiction and the highly ironic and multi-generic performances Moore put forth as his life story She focuses on the tension between Moore's fascination with deterministic theories of human behavior and his need to assert a principle of self-creation his autogenous self Moore's work exhibits a profound recognition of the forces of heredity gender culture and history while simultaneously declaring his belief in an autogenous self In early novels like A Drama in Muslin and Esther Waters there is a notable conflict between his postulation of the pure instinctive individual and the emphasis upon the shaping power of heredity and economics inherent in the traditions of social realism that he adopts In The Untilled Field The Lake and later works Moore perfects a narrative technique that in highlighting the power of subjective memory allows his characters to work out a new relation with the forces of history Grubgeld's discussion of satire caricature and parody as autobiographical forms will contribute greatly to an understanding of how Moore viewed the relations between the self and the surrounding world This study which also incorporates a theoretical discussion of letters as autobiography will be of interest to specialists in Irish studies late Victorian and modern British literature gender studies and autobiography BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved

George Moore, 1852-1933 Adrian Frazier, 2000-06 Always at the centre of any artistic and cultural excitement the Irish writer George Moore enjoyed a sixty-year literary career of prolific writing challenging friendships in Paris London and Dublin and relationships though not marriage with some of the most interesting women of his time This book the first full documentary biography of Moore since 1936 tells the remarkable story of a high-spirited man and his pathbreaking innovations as a writer Adrian Frazier has mined letters memoirs society journals and other archives to reveal new information about Moore's early life his ostensibly promiscuous bachelor days and his complex career as an author The book provides an engaging account of Moore's pursuit of his passions from his early failed attempt to become an artist in Paris in the 1870s through his long career as an author Moore wrote plays poetry criticism short stories and sixteen novels Esther Waters being the best known His experiments in style ranged from the naturalistic A Mummer's

Wife to the stream of consciousness prose of The Lake and the seamless fluent narratives of his late manner the comic Hail and Farewell and the epic The Book Kerith Frazier records the relationships between Moore and his well known friends Yeats Joyce Archer Shaw Frank Harris Sickert Whistler and others and with the many women in his life including his greatest love Lady Cunard At the end of his life Moore sought without success a biographer who would candidly tell the story of his life loves and art Adrian Frazier has now written that story Adrian Frazier is professor of English at Union College Schenectady New York Among his publications are Behind the Scenes Yeats Horniman and the Struggle for the Abbey Theatre 1990

Sexual Restraint and Aesthetic Experience in Victorian Literary Decadence Sarah Green, 2023-03-09 Sarah Green shows how late Victorian Decadent literature paradoxically treats sexual restraint as healthy and aesthetically productive The New Nineteenth Century Barbara Leah Harman, Susan Meyer, 2012-11-12 This book includes essays on writers from the 1840s to the 1890s well known writers such as Anne Bronte Wilkie Collins and Bram Stoker lesser known writers such as Geraldine Jewsbury Charles Reade Margaret Oliphant George Moore Sarah Grand and Mary Ward The contributors explore important thematic concerns the relation between private and public realms gender and social class sexuality and the marketplace and male and female cultural identity The Collected Works of George Moore: Confessions of a young man: avowals George Moore, 1923 A Modern Lover. by George Moore, 2016-10-19 George Augustus Moore 24 February 1852 21 January 1933 was an Irish novelist short story writer poet art critic memoirist and dramatist Moore came from a Roman Catholic landed family who lived at Moore Hall in Carra County Mayo He originally wanted to be a painter and studied art in Paris during the 1870s There he befriended many of the leading French artists and writers of the day As a naturalistic writer he was amongst the first English language authors to absorb the lessons of the French realists and was particularly influenced by the works of mile Zola His writings influenced James Joyce according to the literary critic and biographer Richard Ellmann and although Moore s work is sometimes seen as outside the mainstream of both Irish and British literature he is as often regarded as the first great modern Irish novelist Moore returned to London in 1911 where with the exception of frequent trips to France he was to spend much of the rest of his life In 1913 he traveled to Jerusalem to research for his next novel The Brook Kerith 1916 The book saw Moore once again embroiled in controversy as it was based on the supposition that a non divine Christ did not die on the cross but instead was nursed back to health Other books from this period include a further collection of short stories called A Storyteller s Holiday 1918 a collection of essays called Conversations in Ebury Street 1924 and a play The Making of an Immortal 1927 Moore also spent considerable time revising and preparing his earlier writings for new editions Partly due to Maurice s pro treaty activity Moore Hall was burnt by anti treaty forces in 1923 during the final months of the Irish Civil War Moore eventually received compensation of 7 000 from the government of the Irish Free State By this time George and Maurice had become estranged mainly because of an unflattering portrait of the latter which appeared in Hail and Farewell Tension also arose as a result of religious differences

Maurice frequently made donations to the Roman Catholic Church from estate funds Moore later sold a large part of the estate to the Irish Land Commission for 25 000 Moore was friendly with many members of the expatriate artistic communities in London and Paris and had a long lasting relationship with Maud Lady Cunard Moore took a special interest in the education of Maud s daughter the well known publisher and art patron Nancy Cunard It has been suggested that Moore rather than Maud s husband Sir Bache Cunard was Nancy s father but this is not generally credited by historians and it is not certain that Moore s relationship with Nancy s mother was ever more than platonic Moore was believed by some to be impotent and was described as one who told but didn t kiss Moore s last novel Aphroditis in Aulis was published in 1930 He died at his home at Ebury Street in the London district of Belgravia in early 1933 leaving a fortune of 70 000 He was cremated in London at a service attended by Ramsay MacDonald among others An urn containing his ashes was interred on Castle Island in Lough Carra in view of the ruins of Moore Hall
