

The elements of reasoning

(also known as the elements of thoughts, components of thinking, etc.), the intellectual standards, and the intellectual traits (or intellectual virtues) together form the bedrock of critical thinking theory. Understanding these conceptual sets and their relationships with each other is the first step in elevating one's reasoning, while deepening that comprehension through continued study and practice is a lifelong journey. Most people who begin to learn the fundamentals of critical thinking stop learning before they have a chance to adequately internalize them, and therefore to use them with significant consistency and effectiveness.

This webinar

asks you to complete several activities ahead of time in the Center for Critical Thinking Community Online, all relating to the three concepts above, and to formulate questions that you can bring to the session. Therefore, Dr. Elder will presuppose that attendees have studied the subject matter through these activities, or previously through attending our conferences, academies, or courses. This webinar will be almost entirely based on the questions you bring to the discussion.

The following readings and activities are recommended prior to the webinar:

- 1) Review Page 14 in The Miniature Guide to Critical Thinking Concepts & Tools.
- 2) Watch 'Critical Thinking and the Basic Elements of Thought.'
- 3) Complete the activity 'Analyze the Logic of a Problem or Issue' after reading the template and example at the top of the page.
- 4) Review pages 19 and 20 in The Miniature Guide to Critical Thinking Concepts & Tools.
- 5) Watch 'Critical Thinking - Standards of Thought - Part 1.'
Also watch 'Critical Thinking - Standards of Thought - Part 2.'
- 6) Begin to Think About Intellectual Standards: after examining the diagram at the bottom of the page, complete the activities for at least four of the intellectual standards listed. The more you complete, the better you will understand how the various intellectual standards can be applied to the elements of thought.
