

A LADY'S VISIT...

1 ARRIVE IN AUSTRALIA

COULD it be over of April 1852, the news that the Yankee girl (Eggie) made my brother stop reading the Latin and Greek books and turn to the shipping information in the newspaper. Three weeks later I joined him on a journey to Australia. This is the story of my adventures there.

As soon as we were in Australia, our first big struggle as we walked on dry land after four months at sea. We wanted for the "Melbourne Chronicle" to take us into Melbourne—but what a disappointment! It was a long open wagon, not covered in, crowded with people and their bags, bundles, parcels, a horse and a bird—all jostled by the rickety-looking horses I had never seen.

"Is it still the beautiful country of Australia?" I thought, as we drove along. "But not exactly—except and most with a few trees which looked so stunted and crooked as cactuses."

"The city is much cut out," said the driver. "It must be a walking pace over the rough ground, and the wagon rolled from side to side, so that we were never tired from bumping into the luggage."

We sat tired, and also, I must confess, very cross. I was thankful to arrive safely at the Melbourne Free Office. Our most important task was to find food and somewhere to stay. The food looks very all right, and so we were surprised to find that the horses, with us of us in our driving party (my brother, four disciples, and myself) we could only find accommodations with the housekeeper of a doctor who was away, one small bedroom for the five gentlemen in short, and several to share the bed of the housekeeper.

The housekeeper had also a long narrow hallway arranged, for you see the rickety rocking of the ship. (The Melbourne is full of them) behind all night and I could hear grunts and hiccups, giving a pleasant idea of the state of society! My companion slept well by the side, but I was awake until morning.

— Miss Corquhain —
